DRAWING , COMPOSITION, DESIGN, AND COLOUR IN ALL MEDIA

A weekend workshop in Art with Grant Fuller

Course Outline:

I discuss and explain the procedure I use when planning a painting. Special attention is given to drawing, composition, design and colour.

We will start with a quick study of the subject to be painted and then a slightly more detailed plan, all on drawing paper or sketch book. This is a chance for me to help those who need to get the problems worked out at the planning stage. Taking this time at the start of the workshop has resulted in improved paintings and profound advances in drawing skills.

Exploring the problems of design and composition will help solve and avoid common mistakes and result in dynamic images. Colour mixing is important in all media but there are many common denominators that make this easy to understand.

I demonstrate in watercolour but students have found that they can paint in their preferred medium of either watercolour, acrylics or non-solvent, oils once they have a definite plan for the painting. Please see website for supplies list.
